

Notice on the Prevention of Infection with a Novel Coronavirus

Cases of pneumonia caused by a novel coronavirus have recently been reported in the city of Wuhan, Hubei province, the People's Republic of China. As a precautionary measure, travellers to China are advised to follow the instructions below. This will help early detect such pneumonia cases and prevent the spread of diseases.

|| What should I do to avoid infection?

- Keep out of any contact with poultry or wild animals and never visit a market.
- Keep out of any contact with people who are unwell or showing respiratory symptoms such as fevers and coughs.
- Take personal protective actions such as washing hands, covering your coughs or sneezes with an upper sleeve, and wearing a mask.

|| What should I do after returning to Korea?

- If you develop a fever and respiratory symptoms (e.g. coughs, sore throat, difficulty in breathing, etc.) within 14 days of your returning to Korea, please call the KCDC Call Center at 1339.
- If you develop any respiratory symptoms, wear a mask (when you go outside or visit a medical clinic or a hospital).
- Wash your hands with running water for more than 30 seconds.
- When you visit a medical clinic or a hospital, tell your doctor your overseas travel history (history of visiting Wuhan within 14 days of your development of respiratory symptoms, including your stopovers).
